Conclusion

Youth-driven 4-H experiences provide young people access to safe learning environments; challenging experiences that build skills, competencies, and resiliency to address life's challenges and to actively contribute to society; and partnerships with caring adults to help meet youths' basic needs of belonging, mastery, independence, and generosity. Youth who participate in 4-H report better grades, higher levels of academic competence, and an elevated level of engagement at school. They are also nearly two times more likely to plan to go to college. The structured learning, encouragement and adult mentoring that young people receive through their participation in 4-H plays a vital role in helping them achieve future life successes.
